

John "Hack" Hackmeyer is the owner of the security education services firm CyberCrocodile, LLC (CyberCrocodile). Hack spent nearly a decade as a security systems engineer for companies such as: Intermedia Communications, Ripstech, Symantec, and Websense.

Hack is the creator of the popular and successful teaching methodology Conceptual Linking™ (Conceptual Linking). By utilizing the Conceptual Linking™ methodology in his CISSP prep course (CISSP), Hack has given his students the ability to quickly learn, retain, recall, and utilize the plethora of information required to pass the CISSP exam.

As a former Websense engineer (Websense) and current Websense Master Trainer, Hack brings a wealth of experience to the classroom in an effective and entertaining style.

Hack applies his creative and innovative thinking when developing curricula for his clients (Instructional Design/Curriculum Development).

Hack holds a B.S. in Communications and an M.S. in Exercise Physiology from Florida State University. When he's not teaching, Hack enjoys taking a beating from his kung fu instructor.

Current Certifications:

Retired Certifications:

Kung Fu Logo:

